

DECEPTION DETECTION

A 2 Days Program.

14th – 15th November 2018 (Wednesday & Thursday)

AT ARMADA PETALING JAYA

Most people operate with a truth bias, a belief that other people are generally telling the truth. To think otherwise would make us pretty cynical, bitter and suspicious. In a number of experiments, people are just less than moderately accurate at detecting the truth; the numbers range at more than 60% that is because we are truth bias. When it comes to detecting lies, we fall below the 40% range, because the truth bias causes us to make more mistakes and at the same time we are not aware of the inherent communication obstacles.

To add to communication obstacles are our stereotypes about deception which are false. People can hide their lying eyes. Shifty eyes are not a good indicator of deception. In fact, people's stereotypes about deceptive body language bear only a slight resemblance to really deceptive body language.
